(Apart from above mentioned 6 points, reviewers are free to provide additional suggestions/comments)	This article appears to be a research paper or academic study in economics and time series analysis. Specifically, it focuses on forecasting Australia's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) while addressing structural changes in the data by using a method called "Break for Time Series Components" (BFTSC). The article discusses the methodology, data sources, and results of the study, making it fall into the category of empirical research or applied research in economics and statistics.	Revised
Minor REVISION comments  1. Is language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications?	Some sentences are lengthy and complex, making it difficult for readers to follow the author's train of thought. Breaking down complex ideas into simpler sentences would enhance clarity. Also, there are some grammatical issues, such as missing articles ("the") and incorrect verb tenses. Punctuation, like commas and periods, could be used more effectively to structure sentences.	Done
Optional/General comments
