

Editor's Comment:

I carefully read the original manuscript and the revised manuscripts as well as the reviewers' comments. I found the reviewers' comments relevant and useful to improve the quality of the manuscript. I noticed that the authors successfully revised the manuscript according to the reviewers' comments. Now the manuscript is more readable, more comprehensive and more in line with the scope of the journal. Before accepting the manuscript for publication, the following issues may be considered:

Please modify the study title may be written as "Mental Health Assessment of Medical Students in Tanta University: A Cross-Sectional Study". The tables and figures should be placed in the appropriate places. Small language editing is suggested. References need to be modified as per the journal's style.

Apart from some minor problems with typesetting, reference checking and linguistic editing, the manuscript is complete in every respect. In my opinion, the manuscript focuses on a relevant topic and can contribute significantly to the field of knowledge to which it relates.

I recommend the acceptance of the manuscript in its current form after making minor modifications as suggested above.
