As far as I know, this article is quite good, to provide insight for the general public into the importance of good management, especially financial processes so that they do not cause various complex internal problems. The importance of adopting technology in the current era of digitalization. In the context of rapidly developing research such as digital transformation and corruption, it is essential to include the latest literature. This includes new studies or articles that may have been published after this research began. Authors should continually update their references up to the point of publication to ensure that their research reflects the current understanding of the subject. Given that this article has the potential for international publication, it may be useful to include references from studies conducted in other countries or similar contexts. This will provide broader comparisons and enrich discussion of the findings in a global context. It is also important to consider whether the authors have explored literature from other related disciplines, such as economics, political science, or information technology, that may provide additional insights or support their arguments.
Minor REVISION comments 1. Is language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications?	Yes
Optional/General comments	The substantial variability in corruption propensity values highlights the need for nuanced economic analysis to derive meaningful insights and inform anti-corruption measures. The study echoes Haafst's (2017) observation that countries with a high level of digital transformation experience lower corruption, emphasizing the economic benefits of technological diffusion, increased public awareness, and enhanced information levels. Shops exhibiting robust management practices, ethical business conduct, effective internal controls, and anti-corruption mechanisms are economically less likely to engage in corrupt activities.
