Please write a few sentences regarding the scientific correctness of this manuscript. Why do you think that this manuscript is scientifically robust and technically sound? A minimum of 3-4 sentences may be required for this part.	The manuscript is scientifically robust and technically sound due to its comprehensive historical context, rigorous methodology, and multidimensional analysis, use of relevant data, contemporary relevance, and scholarly engagement. However, While the paper cites various historical sources and analyses, it appears to rely heavily on existing literature without presenting original research findings or primary data analysis. This limits the manuscript's contribution to the field. The paper presents facts and historical timelines but lack critical engagement with the sources.
