

Editor's Comment:

Regarding the Work JERR 88570, I have reviewed the files and the first and corrected version. I think the authors have heeded most of the referees' remarks. However, the referencing system used in the article is confusing and there are references at the end, that are not found in the text. Authors must use the JERR journal system by increasing sequence of numbers placed in square brackets, and accommodate respectively the references section. All references in the section must be referenced by their respective number in parentheses in the text.

Once this is done, the article must be returned for final review.
