Compulsory REVISION comments	This research work is well structured, idea is cleared and writing is concise and argumentative. The literature review is comprehensive and authors managed to successfully discuss the importance of their research, from both a theoretical and an applied perspective. Authors do a good reference to the theoretical fundament for their research work. The methods they choose are adequate, sampling method and sample size are appropriate. The results presented in this work pointed to the serious effects of grand multigravida on the biochemical parameters related to the cardiovascular disease. More researches are needed in the future to study the serious side effects of grand multigravida in pregnant women already suffering from obesity and high blood pressure since the present work does not mention any information about the body mass index as well as the level of T3 and T4 (thyroid gland)..
