Compulsory REVISION comments	This is a very remarkable research with positive economic impact. However, there are a lot of grammatical errors in the manuscript. The author should critically proofread the manuscript and make corrections on tenses, choice of words, reframe sentences and remove words where necessary. Materials and Methods Indicate useful citation(s) you adopted for data collection. Kindly indicate how you controlled the treatments you applied on the wheat samples, since it was a field experiment. What quantity of water do you apply to the wheat samples and at what intervals, during the experiment? i.e briefly describe your water application regime for the experiment. I put forward this question because you mentioned 1st and 2nd irrigation times. Are those the only times you watered the wheat samples? Please clarify.	All correction done by me
Minor REVISION comments	Your literature review (Introduction) is apt and straightforward. I tried putting the corrections in bold but after reading further, I realized the grammatical errors are scattered all over the manuscript. To the best of my knowledge, I have corrected the grammatical errors in the Abstract and part of Introduction. Kindly take note and do the rest.	All correction done by me
Optional/General comments	Having done the necessary corrections, the author will be left with a more presentable, readable, understandable and impactful manuscript.	All correction done by me
