Authors are requested to rewrite the observation into Following heading <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Prognostic and predictive markers.2. Markers – extracellular or intramembrane or intracellular markers.3. Can u divide the markers on basis of histopathology subtypes. The article is good but the authors have to rewrite the observations.	1. The main subject of our article is the effect of molecular markers in advanced breast cancers. Therefore, predictive and prognostic markers are not included. 2. Since the main frame of our article is the effect of molecular markers in advanced breast cancers, separating them as extracellular, intracellular or intramembrane will not contribute to the article. 3. Likewise, the separation of markers according to histopathological subtypes has nothing to do with the main topic of the article.
