Compulsory REVISION comments	This a potentially good paper but in its current form is lacking in many aspects. The following issues need to be addressed 1. Methodology: the author(s) should include a section on methodology and discuss the details of the methodology of the study. 2. The concept of participatory budgeting needs to be explored in details. I suggest the author insect a section for it 3. The authors need to discuss other studies on the participatory budgeting in the developing country and African context to advance a clear empirical context. 4. The conclusion of the article leaves little to be desired. The authors need to expand on it
