Compulsory REVISION comments
Minor REVISION comments	The idea of the research article is good, but some comments can be mentioned on it, as follows: The authors should put the standard error or standard deviation with each mean in the results tables. Some results were mentioned in the abstract such as: correlation between serum tests and gender (.391) with confidence intervals 95% and correlation between serum tests and age (.839) with confidence intervals 95%. These results were not mentioned in the results tables. The authors should mention it in the table within the results. Authors should write the reference list in an uniform style. Some references are old such as : 1962, 1979, 1994, 1995 and 1996. I suggest that they be replaced with new ones.
