Compulsory REVISION comments	The manuscript Design and Fabrication of Manually Operated Paddy Weeder. It can be considered as a contribution in the line of social technologies, despite its simplicity, it helps farmers to develop methods of manufacturing this equipment, as well as apply them efficiently in the daily life of rice crops. However, some reservations must be made in relation to the writing and grammar of the article, also, if it is necessary to review the literature, in a more up-to-date context, and referential citations must be introduced throughout the text. Therefore, I agree that this manuscript be accepted for publication.
