Minor REVISION comments	Interesting and sound paper that present in a clear way a pedagogic initiative aiming to improve the teaching/learning about chemical bonds on upper secondary school in Nigeria. The research is well designed. The literature employed vast and meaningful and it appears this approach on using dramatization to help improving the teaching on this subject and on the clarification of typical misconceptions can be applied in other environments (with adjustments according to the previous training of the students in early years and on the socio-cultural environment). The work is valuable and I just the authors to further develop their work extending the approach to other misconceptions and subject. Minor spelling and typos can be easily located and corrected by the authors.
