Minor REVISION comments	This work contributes to the analysis of the behaviour of rice cultivation in a sodium soil using a gypsum support as a source of calcium. The originality of the work lies in the use of this type of support as a source of nutritive elements (calcium, sodium Magnesium ...). The paper is well drafted with minor corrections especially for the use of abbreviations in the summary. The introductory part is well illustrated, the materials and method part is well described as well as the results and discussion are well presented. I recommend the publication of the paper with minor revision. Remarks are attached in the document
Optional/General comments
