Compulsory REVISION comments	Although valuable in data, it is a difficult manuscript to read due to its monotony and lack of discussion. As it is, I suggest summarizing it for a short communication or other less ambitious type of publication. I don't think it meets the standards of an international paper. Another solution is for the author to write it differently. It is not so much about the content, which however should be improved by adding some discussion and analysis, but about the way it is written, I do not find it elegant enough for an international paper. Perhaps an expert could help the author with the writing.
