Compulsory REVISION comments	The article is a good and relevant article to publish but the English standard needs to be improved upon and I have made supportive corrections or alternative words that would help improve upon the delivery of the English which the authors should reflect upon if they agree with me. Figure 1, figure 2, and figure 3 should be referred to in the correct place in the text as (see figure 1), (see figure 2), (see figure 3). I assume the journal accepts American style writing in that case tumor is correct but if not the word should be tumour. The changes that should be made are not extensive.
