Therefore, authors are strongly advised to get their manuscript edited by a Professional English Language Editing Service
Minor REVISION comments	Objectives need to be clear and must reflect in the results. For example, the objectives states "(1) assess the preference for briquette technology....." and (2) evaluate the extent of using the briquette.....". which seemed general. However, the results were reported based on gender. Authors should either reframe the objectives to reflect gender or report the results in general terms and not based on gender for the sake of consistency. The same applies to "Willingness towards briquette business"
